

MRS. VORTISH TALKS

Wedded Beauty Denies Reardon Was in Love with Her.

INDIRECT CAUSE OF TRAGEDY

Coroner Insists Youth Shot Thomas Morton and M. L. Moorehead Because of Fear Pretty Woman Would Escape—Wanted Information as to Whereabouts.

New York, June 4.—Mrs. F. J. Vortish, of Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, today explained her connection with the triple shooting of Monday in Pittsburgh. Patrick Reardon, a life-long playmate and a former sweetheart of Mrs. Vortish, shot with probably fatal results, Thomas Morton and M. L. Moorehead, and then killed himself. In his pocket was found a picture of Mrs. Vortish and a letter from Mrs. Vortish's husband in Mariner's Harbor, assuring her of his love and asking her for his own and their little son's sake to come home at once.

"Reardon shot himself probably when drunk and in a rage with Morton and Moorehead because he thought they knew where and when I had gone and would not tell him. Possibly his discovery that I had gone home also had something to do with his crazy deed. There was certainly nothing ever between Patrick Reardon and myself to give him the right to be jealous of anybody. The shooting could not have been caused by jealousy, as both of the men shot were too old for any reasonable man to think that they admired me.

"Patrick and I have been friends from our childhood. We were brought up together, and Patrick always called himself my sweetheart as a boy. I am now thirty-two. He was five years younger. My husband was also a pal of Patrick's as a boy, until he began to drink badly. I became engaged when I was twenty. Patrick said that if I married any man other than the one he would kill himself. I laughed at him. Patrick was all right, though, except when he had been drinking too much, which got to be pretty often.

"Meets Patrick Often.

"Of course, as we, my husband and I, lived in Pittsburgh until a few weeks ago, I ran across Patrick fairly often. He was pretty quiet and sensible most of the time. But occasionally he would carry on in a way to convince me that he had never forgiven me for marrying another man. And recently he ran across me on the street in Pittsburgh and told me that he couldn't forget me, and that he was going to shoot himself before long. When Frank, my husband, lost his position in a roller mill in Pittsburgh we broke up our home there and I went to live with an aunt in Bloomfield, a suburb of Washington. He got located about two weeks ago on Staten Island. I did not want to let Reardon know where I was going, for fear he would follow me and annoy my husband and myself.

Went to Visit Friend.

"Five days ago I left my aunt's home in Bloomfield and went to visit for a few days with an old friend living at 141 Lorimer avenue, Pittsburgh. I told there one day and left before Patrick found out I was there. Mr. Moorehead, a man past sixty, lived in the same house with this friend. He had a small express business, so I had him move my things for me.

"I suppose that Patrick found out where I had been and that I had left and that Moorehead had removed my trunks to the station. He got into a drunken frenzy, I imagine, asked Moorehead and Morton, another neighbor, who just happened to be there, where I had gone. Morton did not know, and I suppose, Moorehead knowing his disposition, did not want to tell him. So Patrick, hardly knowing what he was doing, in his drunken frenzy, drew his revolver and shot. No one regrets the affair more than I do."

Mrs. Vortish is a pretty woman, with brown hair and eyes, regular features, and good figure. She is boarding at 42 Bush avenue, Mariner's Harbor, with her husband and child.

Coroner Investigates Case.

Pittsburgh, June 4.—Investigation by the coroner into the case of Patrick Reardon leads the coroner to believe that not only was Reardon in love with Mrs. Vortish, but that his two intended victims, Moorehead and Morton, were also in love with her, which was probably responsible for the tragedy. The letter carrier on the route was before the coroner to-day, and told him that all three of the men appeared to get letters from her, and that each would stop him at different times to ask if there was a letter for either of them from her.

GIRL A REAL GLOBE TROTTER.

Miss (Petite) Van Vleet Makes Longest Railway Journey Alone.

New York, June 4.—As a globe trotter Miss Petite Van Vleet, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter D. Van Vleet, of Memphis, Tenn., has established a unique record. She traveled alone across Siberia, the Japan Sea, Manchuria, Russia, and Europe from Tokyo to Paris, to join her parents. She could have returned to America by simply taking the steamship across the Pacific, but she wanted the experience of the longest railroad journey one can make. Miss Van Vleet, with her parents, arrived to-day on the Holland-American Line steamer Nordland.

"It took me eighteen days to cross Siberia," she said. "I had been visiting Miss Wright at the German embassy in Tokyo when I received word from my parents to join them in Paris. I have traveled a great deal alone, and can look out for myself. But I tell you that was a long trip, and I do not think I would like to duplicate it, although I must say I was comfortable during those eighteen days of railroad riding across the wastes of Siberia."

be left to exercise full and complete power over commerce within the State. "I have always insisted upon the observance of the distinction which the Constitution draws between the sphere of the Federal government and the sphere of the State."

Some Democrats with Trysts.

"We have a few Democrats whose sympathies are with the trusts and some Democrats are always alarmed when a remedy is proposed. If the remedy is proposed by a State, such Democrats are afraid that it interferes with the Federal government, and if it is proposed by the Federal government, they are afraid it interferes with the State."

"The people will not take their Democracy from the employes of the trusts who earn their salaries by chloroforming the public while the pockets of the people are being picked."

"No corporation Democrats will be permitted to use the doctrine of States' rights for the betrayal of the people. Congress alone has the power to regulate interstate commerce, and those who are unwilling to have Congress exercise this power must know that the States are powerless in such matters."

All Trusts Wrong.

"President Roosevelt has attacked some of the trusts. I believe that all trusts are wrong. He has not attacked the principle of private monopoly, whereas the Democratic party believes that the principle is abhorrent, and that no private monopoly should be permitted to exist."

"When the President is Hamiltonian in his ideal rather than Jeffersonian, and has shown a tendency to ignore the sphere of the State, I believe that the Federal remedies should supplement the State remedies instead of being substituted for them."

"In other words, from the Democratic standpoint, the President does not go far enough or fast enough in the prosecution of trusts. He does not assert fundamental principles in dealing with the trusts, and does not sufficiently counter the dual character of our government."

"I have been glad to commend him as far as I could. He has helped to educate the people up to the belief that something must be done, and I think that the people will find that the Democratic party is the one party that is prepared to do what ought to be done."

Discusses Third Term.

"When in Congress I endeavored to secure an amendment to the Constitution making the President ineligible for a second term, and in both of my campaigns I announced that if elected I would not be a candidate for a second term. I would hardly look favorably, therefore, upon a third term."

"I assume that the President will adhere to the opinion which he has expressed on the subject and will not be a candidate again. It would be a reflection upon the success of his administration if, contrary to an enormous majority, he had so reduced the popularity of his party as to make it impossible for any other Republican to be elected."

"If his returns are of a substantial character there ought to be some other Republican sufficiently identified with them to represent them as a candidate. It would be strange if the President was strong enough to violate the anti-third-term provision of the Constitution, and yet was not able to develop a worthy Republican successor."

BIG AIR ENGINE EXPLODES

Two Men Killed in Extraordinary Mine Accident.

Locomotive, Being Chased, When Fall of Rock Jars Air Box Loose, Causing Fatalities.

Wilkesbarre, June 4.—In an accident which has never before occurred in the history of anthracite mining, two men were killed, two fatally injured, and twenty others hurt, in the checker vein of the Pennsylvania Coal Company's No. 14 colliery near here to-night.

The dead are Engineer Patrick McCauler, of Pittston, and Driver Boss John Munley, of Plains. Henry Waters and Michael Platan are fatally hurt and most of the others injured are Slav newworkers.

McCauler was the engineer of a compressed air locomotive and was hauling out the last load of men when the motor ran out of air. He stopped at a charging station and had nearly completed charging the locomotive when a rock occurred. This must have opened a seam in the air box, for a terrific explosion followed, and the engine was torn to fragments.

McCauler reached for something in his hip pocket, and the mayor excused himself for a minute. He sent up several policemen, who took the negro without much trouble, and found nothing worse in his pocket than an old bandanna handkerchief. The policeman recognized him as their old acquaintance, John Cannon, who has been in the asylum since several years ago. Cannon got away for his trip to Mayor Fagan after he had been out in the asylum grounds to exercise. He is back again to-day.

New York, June 4.—There is an insane negro in the Hudson County Asylum on Snake Hill, whose habit has been to call on the mayors of Jersey City. He made a brief call yesterday on Mayor Mark M. Fagan, in the city hall. Appearing suddenly before the mayor, he said: "Ah comes to inform you, sah, dat yo' am heahy, an' heahatful no longer mayah of his beach city."

DUKE ENJOYS CONEY

Abruzzi, with Elkins Party, Takes in All "Thrills."

LOSES HAT AND ALL CARES

Insists on Repeater on Seaside Railway—Shoots the Chutes Like Real Admiral—Loses Hat, but Falls to Get Crown Back—Guards Watch Him, but He Does Not Know.

New York, June 4.—The duke of Abruzzi went down to Coney to have a real good time to-night. He had it all right, for while he and young Stephen B. Elkins, Jr., and the five young women in the party, one of whom was Miss Elkins, were doing about everything there is to do at the island, the duke romped about like a schoolboy with a stolen holiday. He shot the chutes, took in every ride and scenic railway he could find, swung around in the airships, and fraternized with the Moravian band in "The Orient."

He had to chase his hat like any ordinary mortal, too, after a ride on a scenic railway, but only royalty could smile as gracefully as he did when all but the crown was restored to him. Chis Dalton, the oldest frankfurter man on the island, kept that as a souvenir.

The duke, Mr. Elkins and his two sisters, and the duke's flag lieutenant went through Dreamland, remaining there until the park closed.

"How exhilarating!" he cried the first time the party shot the Dreamland chutes.

"Let's have another," he insisted on riding on every scenic railway. When they dipped the duke and shot around the curves or plunged into tunnels the duke whooped and the women squealed just as Mamie and her "sleety" do every Saturday afternoon.

"Let's Do It Again."

"This is great—what you call bully," the duke announced after he had taken a swing in the airships. "Let's do it again."

But the ladies wanted to go to the baby-incubators, so the duke and Mr. Elkins could see how "cute and cunning" the precious little things were, so there. The duke facetiously admired one, and Dr. Fischel rose to the occasion by promptly naming the youngster Luigi Amedeo Giuseppe Ferdinando Francesco d'Abruzzi d'Albini.

But the duke had fled and was at Hill Gate by the time that Dr. Fischel had reached Ferdinando. He enjoyed the descent in the maelstrom, and then insisted on taking in all the other attractions, and when the park closed he and Mr. Elkins were ready for the Bowerly. The duke took every ride and slide he could find, and looped the loop with a pleasure not shared by Mr. Elkins, who gravely wheeled to a halt.

Lost His Hat, Then.

Then the duke took a farewell ride, and lost his hat and didn't get the crown back, so for the first time in his history Yitzof Ochelskowsky's notions and dry goods emporium in Surf avenue had a royal customer. On the strength of it Yitzof told his staff of police clerks, Wolf Levenstein, to mark up everything 10 per cent.

The party then went to Steeplechase, where the duke slid down poles and had a fine time, but he balked at the human roulette wheel. He said it was time that he was getting back to New York, anyway.

"We've nothing like this at home," he said, "and if we had I suppose I'd have no chance to enjoy them. It wouldn't look well for a cousin of the king to do these things, and there'd be too many people and guards and things around, anyway. Now, there hasn't been an officer near me at all to-night."

But Inspector Harkins had had two men following the party at a discreet distance all evening.

BOECK'S VICTIM ASSIGNS.

Edward Dayton, Mutilated Jeweler, Lost $50,000.

New York, June 4.—Edward W. Dayton, jeweler and dealer in antiques at 4 West Thirty-ninth street, who was robbed by J. Edward Boeck, expert jeweler, maker, and swindler, has been forced to assign for the benefit of creditors.

Boeck obtained through Mr. Dayton jewelry valued at nearly $50,000 shortly before disappearing from this city three weeks ago. It was the property of Ludwig Nissen & Co., of Broadway and Ludlow street, and was obtained by Boeck on memoranda signed by Mr. Dayton, who had business dealings with the firm.

Senator William A. Clark was indirectly concerned in the residence which Mr. Dayton resided in Boeck.

BLOW AT LOW CAR FARES.

Supreme Court of Ohio Decides Against Tom Johnson Plan.

Columbus, June 4.—The Supreme Court to-day, in a decision in the suit of the City of Cleveland against William Reynolds, gave a great victory for the Cleveland Consolidated Railways Company and a blow to low fares. The case involved the validity of the street-car franchises on Erie and Central avenues. The Circuit Court upheld the validity of the franchises of the Consolidated Railways Company, and the Supreme Court sustained the Circuit Court, thus knocking out the low fare franchise.

SCORES CONVICT LABOR.

Samuel Gompers, at Jamestown, Praises Union Labor.

Norfolk, Va., June 4.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech before the State Federation here to-day, declared that nothing had done so much to reunite the North and South as has union labor. In speaking of the condition of labor in the State at large, he roundly denounced the State convict labor system and pleaded for the protection of working children, whose lives, he said, are being ground out. He also made a plea for a more lofty munition in the labor movement, and many Confederate veterans being in the city, he took advantage of the occasion to pay a tribute to the men and women of the Confederacy.

CROKER TO RETURN IN FALL

Ex-New Yorker Will Visit Friends Once Again.

Declares He Is Out of Politics for Keeps—Would Not Become Belton to Enter Parliament.

London, June 4.—Richard Croker, who is to attend the running of the Derby, in which his chestnut colt Orby is entered, made the interesting announcement to-day that he would visit America this fall.

"I go," he said, "with no other intention than to see my old friends, who are dying off in great numbers. My visit to America will be without political purpose. I am definitely out of politics, though my repeated assertions to this effect do not seem to be believed. Naturally, I continue to take an interest in political affairs, but my interest and opinion are those of a private citizen."

"I follow the issues as well as I can from the American newspapers. I read President Roosevelt's speech, but I have no comments to make on it other than to say that supervision of the railroads should be by the States, and not by the Federal government, as I believe that the former would be more effective than the latter."

"Let me again designate the story that I intend entering Parliament as a yarn, pure and simple. To enter Parliament, I would have to become a British subject. I have always been an American, and I will always continue to be one."

Mr. Croker added: "Hereafter, if any story appears that I am to take office or re-enter politics, deny it immediately without consulting me. I will stand by any such denials. Perhaps I may be forced to have printed telegrams ready to deny the government's recommendation, to send out when any yarn about me appears."

WOULD STIR SOUTH

Administration Wants to Give Section More Jobs.

McILHENY GETS A MISSION

Civil Service Commissioner Leaves for Southern States to Disabuse People About Erroneous Notions as to Political Prejudice in Government Employment.

Having as an object an increased percentage of Federal officeholders of Southern nativity, John A. McIlheny, of Louisiana, the President's recent appointee as a member of the Civil Service Commission, leaves to-day for Raleigh, N. C., and in that State, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana, for the next two weeks will urge upon the people the advantages of taking civil service examinations and placing themselves in line for Federal appointments.

Mr. McIlheny, himself a Southerner, was appointed by the President with the idea of increasing the interest of the South in the opportunities afforded by the civil service.

"The President some time ago noticed that the appointments in the civil service from the Southern States were less in proportion to population than from any other portion of the country, and that the proportion, instead of growing larger with time, was growing materially smaller," said Mr. McIlheny last night.

Race Question Involved.

"In looking into the reasons why the South has shown such indifference to the civil service in the past I find that there still exists in the minds of the people the belief that by reason of the fact that the administration is Republican and the South overwhelmingly Democratic, that it is useless for a Democrat to make application for an examination, as he never would be appointed. As this is entirely a misunderstanding, the Civil Service Commission, being a non-partisan, non-political board, both in its formation and in its operation, I wish to bring that fact clearly before the people and show them that it is well worth their while to come forward and take the examinations."

"I find also that while the white people of the South are abstaining from taking the examinations, and are apparently indifferent to the advantages of the civil service, they object very seriously to the negroes filling the Federal offices in that service. I wish to explain to the people that as the law recognizes no distinction of color, we are operating under the law, and that if the negroes apply for the examinations and pass them, and the white people abstain from the examinations, the result will be that the offices must necessarily be filled by the negroes, however objectionable it may be to the white people of the South, and that the solution rests with them."

Advantages of Civil Service Job.

"The advantages offered are these: The young man of poor or moderate means can obtain a position with an entrance salary of $720 a year, and by his ability he can advance to a salary of $2,000 or more. If he is ambitious he can at the same time, by reason of the educational advantages offered by the different institutions located in Washington, study and obtain his degree in any of the professions."

All of the institutions located in Washington have excellent schools, and the fees which they charge are very moderate. The hours of work in the civil service extend from 9 to 4:30, and leave ample time for a young man to take up the study of his chosen profession and perfect himself in it."

Among other points at which Mr. McIlheny will speak are Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro, N. C.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Augusta and Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Jackson, Miss., and New Orleans.

By the will of Dowie the widow and son were denied the use of the property, but Judge Landis in settling the estate granted it to the widow in fee simple.

Wilbur Glen Voliva yesterday purchased a two-flat building within one block of the administration building in city and proposed to remain in the city and fight every turn of the court or receiver to dispossess him.

The schools in Zion City closed yesterday, to remain closed until the teachers receive their back salaries. Effort was put forth to have the schools continue, but the teachers refused to negotiate for a continuation of their services until every dollar due them was paid.
